Αρετή

The Greeks Had a Word for It.....

Among the ancient Greeks αρετή was a meaningful word. αρετή, pronounced (ă ruh tăy'), and spelled "Arete," symbolized Goodness, Virtue, Courage, and Good Service. The Aquinas Institute of Rochester has adopted the word, Arete, as the title of its annual publication. It is an attempt to epitomize in a word all that this Institute, established for the Catholic education of young men, strives to instill in her graduates . . . Goodness, Virtue, Courage, and Good Service—"Arete."

SISTER MARY STELLA

Vivacious, solicitous and remarkably competent, Sister Mary Stella has devoted a quarter of a century to the teaching of Aquinas students. The word "devoted" was not chosen by chance. Indeed the inspiration that her long life at Aquinas has given us is one of devotion to a life work. Sister Stella has devoted her life to Aquinas and the Catholic Youth of Rochester. Perhaps the students expressed it as aptly as possible when they dubbed Sister Stella "a man's woman." Indeed she has always inspired manliness in her pupils, and the many young men that have passed through her guiding hands during the last twenty-five years are better men for having known her. It is the love and esteem and respect of the staff and the student body that prompts this humble dedication of the '49 Arete.

SISTER MARY BRENDAN

Sister Brendan is an artist. Like Sister Stella, she has spend a quarter of a century with Aquinas boys. She has painted a portrait on the canvas of Aquinas in bold lines and daring colors. She has molded the hearts of the innumerable young men that have been her rough clay to a better appreciation of beauty. Time and time again her pupils have won recognition at art exhibits in both oils and water-colors. But it is for the love and appreciation of the beauty of a Christian life that the Aquinas students are most grateful. It is in appreciation of the beauty Sister Brendan has brought into our school and into our lives, that we gratefully dedicate the 1949 Arete.

This is the Aquinas Story . . .

In the past years to have a formal and static yearbook has been the policy of the Arete. The Staff of the 1949 Arete, however, decided to employ a more modern and vivid form for this year's publication. Thus, we are presenting The Aquinas Story, which by its informality will demonstrate the authentic life at Aquinas, the close association between students and faculty, the friendship and sociability of the student body. As you read, we trust that you will quicken to the pulse of the school behind The Aquinas Story . . .

THE FIFTH BISHOP OF ROCHESTER, THE MOST REVEREND JAMES E. KEARNEY, D.D.

ROCHESTER'S BISHOP GUIDES YOUTH

His Excellency, the Bishop of Rochester heads the administration of The Aquinas Institute of Rochester. Under his guidance, Catholic Education in the Rochester Diocese has flourished. The Fifth Bishop of Rochester has been called the Bishop of Education. In this the twelfth year of his administration, Bishop Kearney has laid the foundations for the realization of a Catholic College within the diocese; thus completing the cycle of an educational system that he has laboured long and assiduously to foster. Bishop Kearney is no stranger to the Aquinas student. Ever willing to instruct, to guide and to pray with the students of the institute, this Man of God, this Shepherd of Youth is an inspiration to both Staff and students. Ad multos Annos!

A BISHOP WHOSE VERSATILITY HAS BECOME A LEGEND.

The Diocese of Rochester has been thrice blessed. It has been given by Providence, a Bishop who is famous for his personal sanctity, for his wide intellectual accomplishments, and for his untiring labor in the cause of souls. At sodality receptions, at graduations, at civic events, in the cause of education, of good government, of Christian living, Bishop Kearney has been indefatigable in furthering the cause of Good by his labor, the inspiration of his presence, and his selfless zeal. More to this man than to any other does the Aquinas Institute owe its present expansion, its inspiration and its attested greatness as a cornerstone of American democracy and Christian life.

ADMINISTRATION

YOUTHFUL ADMINISTRATOR RESPONSIBLE FOR EDUCATIONAL AND RELIGIOUS PROGRESS AT AQUINAS

In the Principal's Office at Aquinas there is an accent on youth. We mean not the students that are called "on the carpet" there, but the Principal himself. Father William J. Duggan, C.S.B. is a young man. Perhaps it is this happy, rare combination of youth and administrative ability that demands the admiration, respect and friendship of the student. He is the hub of the feverish activity of student life, the pivot of all things Aquinas, responsible for the flourishing of an academic program and sporting fame that has become a legend. For five years he has guided the school's policy. During that time the enrollment has grown to a capacity 1750 and the name of Aquinas of Rochester has been carried throughout the country by her thousands of graduates. The name of her present principal has become synonymous with progress, courage and foresight in the field of Catholic Education.

Principal's Assistants Tirelessly Seek Realization of School Policy

To increase the effectiveness and efficiency of the administration, the positions of Vice-Principal and Second Vice-Principal were created two years ago. Since the inception of these offices, Father Kehoe and Father Donovan have respectively been Vice-Principal and second Vice-Principal. They have more than creditably executed the duties that behoove their positions.

One of the most tedious and taxing obligations is that of Freshman Principal. This, Father Sheehy has been for the last three years. His guidance and clever handling of freshmen have contributed a great deal to the calibre of students Aquinas has.

IN HIS OFFICE FATHER R. M. FISCHETTE, WORKS ON SOME OF HIS NUMEROUS RECORDS

Directing students curricula and advising them in their selection of courses are among the duties of the Director of Studies and his assistant, Miss Dougherty. The students of Aquinas are grateful for the sage advice given them so altruistically by Father. His interests in student affairs is not limited to this position for he is active as moderator of the Student Council and as a French teacher. Father's numerous duties would never be completed without the unerring assistance of Miss Dougherty.

FATHER VINCENT ECKERT UNTIRINGLY GOES THROUGH HIS FILES TO CHECK TUITION PAYMENT

A familiar sight to every student is the Bursar's Office with Father Eckert seated behind the desk working assiduously over the receipt book as the students queue up to pay their tuition when each term draws to a close. The gigantic task of balancing the books is efficiently executed by Father Eckert and his dependable assistant, Mrs. Karp. The cafeteria, always a major item on the school's budget, is ingeniously maintained under Father's competent supervision. The financial success that the Arete realized could never have been achieved had it not been for Father's solving our banking and accounting problems.

Known and beloved by all acquainted with him, Mr. Felix Hart, Secretary of Aquinas and a key instrument in the school's administration, has done much not only to increase the efficiency of the administration, but also to promote the name of Aquinas. His joviality and wit have added to the harmony at Aquinas. He has befriended many students, which is one of the reasons for his being held in such high esteem by us.

BASILIAN FATHERS

Dear Alma Mater,

We, the Senior Class officers, on behalf of our fellow graduates wish to make this letter a manifestation of our appreciation for teaching us the way of "goodness, discipline and knowledge".

Ever since we entered Aquinas as callow, awed freshmen, you have made every possible endeavor to educate us in the true sense of the word. You have led us into a basic appreciation of the arts and letters. You have instilled within us a fundamental understanding of the sciences, which some will develop in collegiate training and which others will use to enjoy the phenomena of life. You have taught us to exercise a rudimentary appreciation of music, and following the Latin Motto, "Sana Mens en Sano Corpore", you have endeavored to give us an opportunity to develop ourselves physically by the athletic facilities that you have maintained. You have astutely disciplined our caprices and adolescent irregularities. But most important you have taught us to love and hold dear Catholicism- and to practice our Faith regularly and sincerely.

This is but a slight enumeration of the toils that you undertook to insure our success.

Your loving sons,

Tom Green

RICHARD AULENBACHER OUTLINES PROPOSED PLANS FOR A DANCE TO BE HELD AT THE ANNEX

During the year it was the Student Council's responsibility to sponsor dances, to provide a medium for the expression of student opinion and to foster improvements pertaining to the school. Although not required of them, they created student opinion sympathetic to the school and strengthened loyalty to Aquinas. They enriched the opportunities for fellowship between students and members of the faculty and administration. In conducting and supervising elections for various school offices, a subordinate duty of theirs, they acted judiciously and impartially. Because of all they did to make this school year a fuller and happier one they deserve a goodly portion of gratitude for this successful scholastic year.

Teaching advanced algebra and trigonometry to unmathe-matical seniors has been Father Donovan's position for some fifteen years. Father, however, does not teach a dry brand of mathematics, for he possesses remarkable wit, which he is always willing to inject into his classes.

The effect of his humor is that his students are put at ease and thus absorb more of the subject. Father is known to his students by his classical phrase: "Just an attempted humor by a poor wit." As moderator of homeroom 318 he is very popular.

SENIORS

Teaching seniors solid geometry is one of the duties of Father Carter, Director of Athletics at Aquinas. In his eight years of teaching in Rochester he has led a vigorous life. In the fall of the year Father barely finds time to carry on his teaching. One of his favorite pastimes is discussing the achievements of the football team. In his gray jacket Father Carter is often seen watching scrimmages or walking about the Norton Street field.

Father Lococo, a veteran at teaching Aquinas students the fascination of Cicero's writings, has been very active during the last eleven years he has taught at Aquinas. Moderator of the Latin Club, Father has accomplished a great deal in stimulating interest in the Latin classics. Father is the moderator of homeroom 305, in which he takes a keen interest and of which he is very proud. He is universally liked by all the students who are acquainted with him.

In two short years that Father Malone has been the head of the Guidance Department he has accomplished an unmeasurable amount of good. He has established the Guidance Department, and through his assiduous toils he has unerringly guided many a senior to collegiate and commercial success. Father teaches English IV and is known for his captivating analysis of English literature. His interest in seniors is most aptly displayed by his management of homeroom 306, of which he is moderator. You can find him most anytime steeped in a "psycho" book or holding forth in the pulpit at St. John the Evangelist's.

Feeling that his first year at Aquinas has been tremendously successful, Father Nolan has been moderator not only of homeroom 308 but also of the Chemistry Club. A scholar in the physical sciences, Father teaches chemistry to "awed" seniors while carrying a few classes in world history. He is known for his philosophical discourses on modern education which he gives whenever he thinks the effects are present in his students.

Father O'Meara has been a familiar figure around Aquinas for the last five years except for a year intervening during which he studied at the University of Toronto for his doctorate. An avid student of history, Father is held in high regard for the intriguing American history classes. The students of homeroom 312, which Father moderates, show unbelievable devotion to him. On Sundays Father O'Meara can be seen assisting the pastor of St. Louis's Church in Pittsford.

As guidance and history teacher, Father Slattery has won extraordinary respect. He has been associated with Aquinas for the last seven years and has been the head of the History Department for the last few years. Civic and political affairs fascinate Father and induce him to be quite active in them. Of homeroom 307 Father is moderator. At St. Rose's Parish in Lima, New York, he spends his weekends. It is said that Father Slattery plays "a mean hand of Euchre."

Witty Father Onorato, moderator of homeroom 319, is very popular with the students of the senior class since he is such a personable, knowable gentleman. The informal classes Father conducts have shown that classroom informality makes for better scholastic performance on the part of the students. Teacher of Spanish and Italian, Father Onorato is thoroughly conversant with his subjects. Every Sunday morning he rises miserably early to make bus connections to Shortsville, New York, where he celebrates Mass.

Although the students only see Father Haffey for two short chemistry periods per day, they are ever aware of his fame. Dynamic educator, Founder and Director of the Aquinas Christian Culture Series, Director of the fabulous Aquinas Mission Unit, Father Haffey's contributions are enormous. At the moment Father has just completed the campaign for funds and laying the foundation for the curriculum of Rochester's first Men's Catholic College. For St. John Fisher College is Father Haffey's "baby." With all these projects on hand, Father still found time to found and foster the Aquinas Men's Club.

One of the most enjoyed courses at Aquinas is physics. And one of the most enjoyable teachers is Father Willet. His pedagogical style is not scintillating but extremely effectual. Although physics is rather a dry subject to some students, Father has the skill of maintaining complete attention—even though he will not admit it. Father teaches also aviation. He is a familiar figure at the local airport where he puts his academic knowledge of aviation to practical use.

A secular priest of the Diocese of Rochester, Father Hanna teaches public speaking to seniors. He is noted for his technique of making diffident students into gregarious and sparkling speakers. In a Mark Twain eloquence Father is inclined to express himself, which creates an unique classroom atmosphere. Much sought after by fraternal organizations, Father Hanna is often requested to deliver speeches at banquets and ceremonial affairs.

With the History Club and Mission Unit of which he is the Assistant Director Father Looby is kept occupied. As an American history teacher he is one of the most qualified. Although Father teaches senior subjects primarily, he infuses a great deal of zeal into his junior homeroom, 314. He takes great pride in keeping his homeroom outstanding in the support of foreign missions. Father Looby is well known for the schemes he employs in raising funds for his Mission Unit.

Among the faculty members of Aquinas is Father Flood, who teaches English IV as well as English III. Moderator of junior homeroom 316, he directs the Sodality of the Blessed Virgin Mary and is responsible for the success that the organization has had. In the autumn Father Flood is busy coaching the reserve football. His hobbies are "reading, riding and rigorous morale."

REV. J. W. EMBSE, C. S. B.

Although Father Embser is only known to the seniors that take Virgil in his Latin IV class, Father does not need any introduction, for his name and reputation have permeated the atmosphere of the third floor. Besides teaching Virgil, Father Embser is Director of Novices and instructs Nazareth College students in Latin Classics during the mornings. Father Embser's quietly dynamic personality has endeared him to the seniors of Aquinas. It is hoped that Father's pedagogical techniques are perpetuated in the teaching of Latin Classics to Aquinas students.

Juniors and Sophomores Brighten School's Future

FATHER WURZER INSTRUCTS CLASS ON WORLD HISTORY PROBLEM.

The "sage" seniors who direct the activities at Aquinas must concede a number of things to the underclassmen at Aquinas, our juniors and sophomores. Without a doubt they have supplied avid interest and enthusiasm to all the activities, both scholastic and extracurricular. They have enabled clubs to continue; they have supplied writers to publications and they have taken a dynamic part in theatrical productions. To the underclassmen Aquinas owes a great deal.

SISTER STELLA PASSES HER FREE PERIOD IN THE CHAPEL.

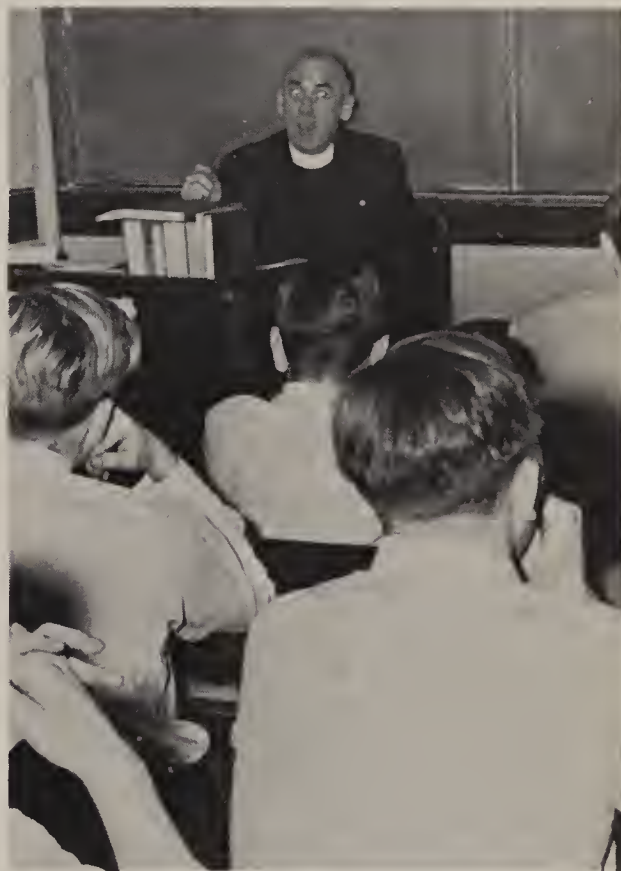

BECAUSE OF ACCESSIBILITY TO EXITS UNDERCLASSMEN ARRIVE FIRST TO WAITING BUSES

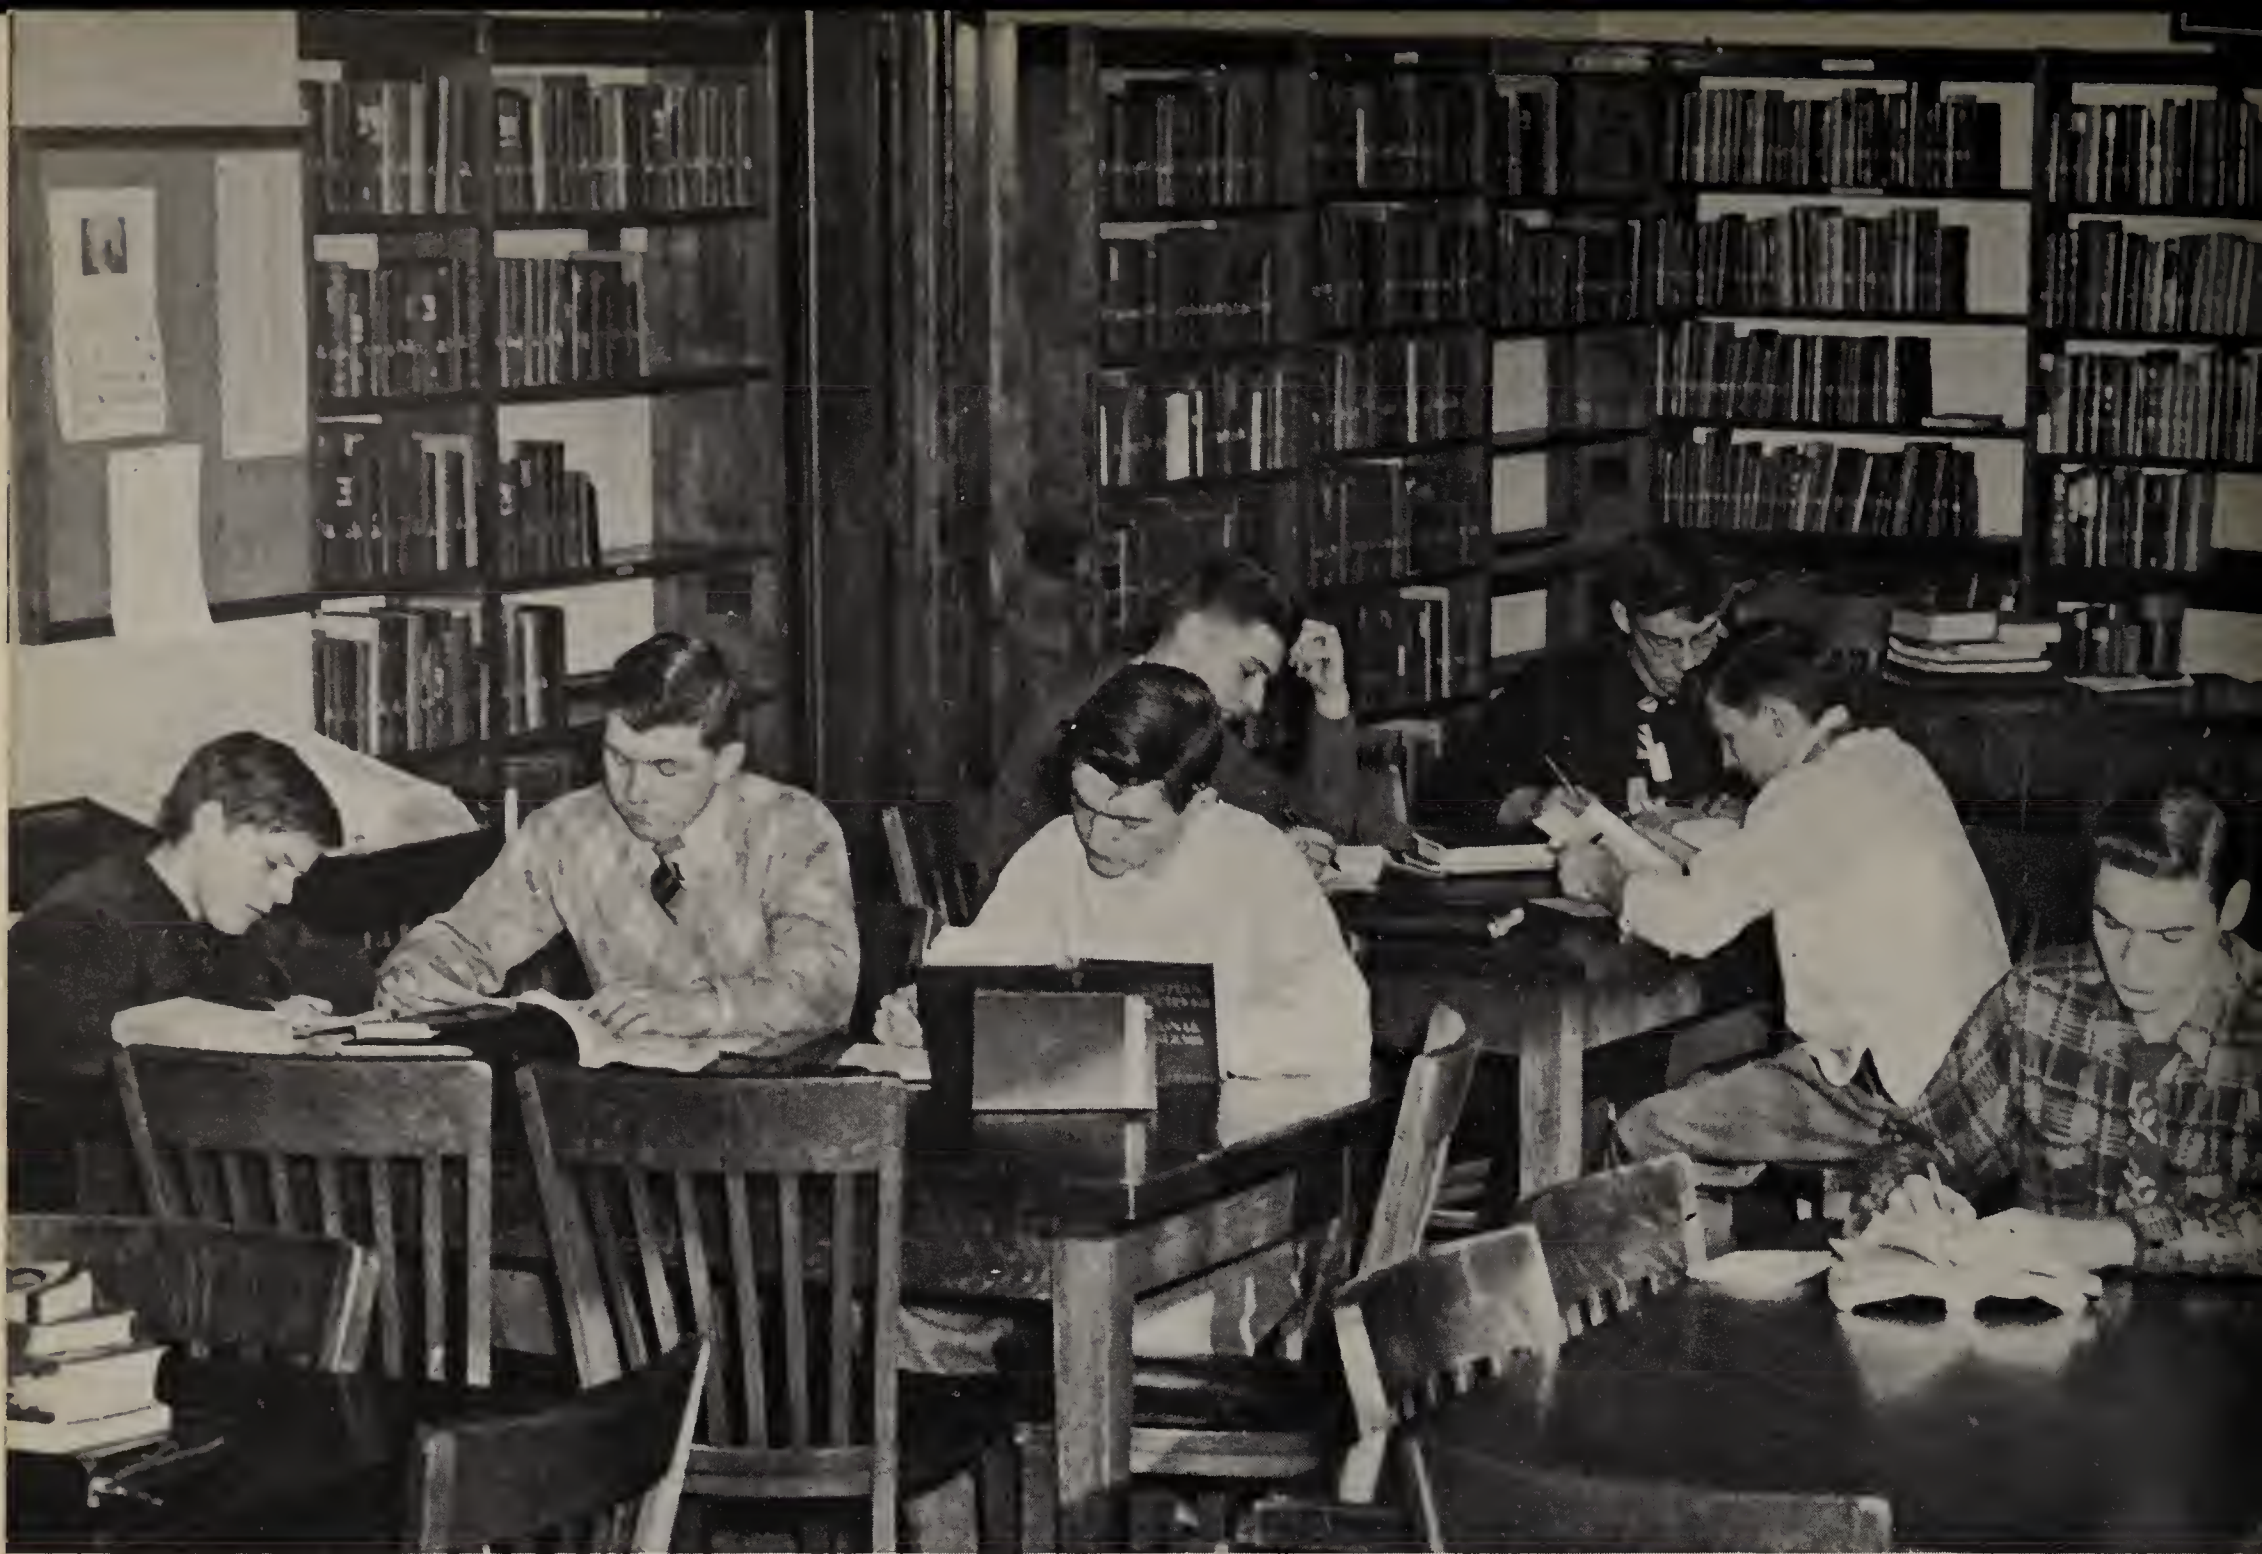

The scholastic accomplishment of the underclassmen is excellent. They are doing more than their share to maintain the record that Aquinas has. The diversity of the courses they study is remarkable. The courses range from introduction to business to Greek. And under the supervision of the Director of Studies more than three-fourths of the underclassmen follow the college entrance curriculum. If the intellectual calibre of the future underclassmen is as good as that of the present underclassmen, Aquinas will have no difficulty in holding its esteemed position with the New York State Board of Regents.

UNDERCLASSMEN MIXED WITH SOME SENIORS BEGIN SCHOOL DAY

CANDID SHOTS OF FACULTY AND UNDERCLASSMEN REVEAL HARMONY AND FELLOWSHIP ON THE PARTS OF BOTH STUDENTS AND TEACHERS

AQUINAS SUPPORTS AND SUPPLEMENTS OUR WELL-STOCKED LIBRARY UNDER THE SUPERVISION OF FATHER MEYER TO STIMULATE AND REFINE THE LITERARY TASTES OF THE UNDERCLASSMEN, AS WELL AS THOSE OF THE SENIORS.

THE PHYSICS DEPARTMENT CAREFULLY SUPPLIES LABORATORY WITH MODERN APPARATUS

Numerous Facilities Offered

To assist underclassmen to orientate themselves, to discipline themselves and to develop themselves in arts and letters Aquinas has many facilities. Father Kehoe, Prefect of Discipline as well as a member of the administration, willingly confers with juniors and sophomores on school policy and the results of its transgression. The expense of laboratories that the school must bear is tolerated so that the science students may come to a fuller and more mature understanding and appreciation of the phenomena of science. These assistants—only slightly enumerated—tend to complement a student both spiritually and physically.

Freshmen

FRESHMAN SCHOOL OF AQUINAS INSTITUTE OF ROCHESTER

A SCHOOL OF 500 FRESHMEN

So much has the enrollment at the Institute increased during the past ten years that in 1946 it became necessary to house the Freshmen under a separate roof. The Aquinas Annex on LaGrange Avenue shelters the "twigs" that will grow into Aquinas "oaks." There are 500 such "twigs," the Annex's capacity, on LaGrange this year.

The Annex is almost a school in itself. The Mission Unit, under the guidance of Father Prince, carries more than its share. Father O'Reilly and Mr. McCarthy are the key activity men. The Freshmen are the "eager-beavers" and the "farm" for the Varsity Football squad. Mr. Joseph Moynihan has patiently whipped the Frosh Team into a guarantee for the future. And all this under the nose of the Principal, Father Sheehy.

The enthusiasm for taking part in school activities displayed by the Freshmen at the Annex is something for the Senior Class to contemplate. During the Yearbook Magazine Drive, the "kids" at the Annex did more than their share. They sold over $5000.00 worth of subscriptions. The fame of Homeroom 100A began to spread as time and time again they headed the campaign. Everyone knows that Father Princee was their inspiration. The Oratorical contests at the Annex have developed talents that put the upperclassmen to shame. William Flynn and Charles Dever have the most silvered tongues this year. Then there is the Annual Freshman Hop that takes the form of a gala evening and decorative Ball, thanks to the tireless energy of Mr. McCarthy. Mr. Kelley among his multiple duties has found time to organize and sponsor a Basketball league. And, of course, we have mentioned Mr. Moynihan and the Football squad.

Arete's reporters, Gary Smith and Thomas Attridge, brought back the report that the Freshman Class this year put on the best acts in the Variety Show. They also report that Mr. McCarthy is a dynamo of activity among the Freshmen and to him should be extended a bouquet of appreciation. They were humbled in the presence of Homeroom 100A and its moderator, Father Prince, who, by the way, is the Annex. Our reporters left the Freshmen feeling confident that Aquinas and her future are guaranteed success, and doffed their hats to the Annex of '49. "Great kids!" they were heard to say.

ROBERT STANWICK AND HIS DATE, PATRICIA NEWLAND, ENTERING AQUINAS TO ATTEND THE VARIETY SHOW

Social Affairs Proved Integral Part of Aquinas Education

Educators have for a number of years upheld the theory that the social life of a student is almost as important as his academic life, for a man, no matter how well educated he is, is a failure to his education if he is socially inept and not aware of the niceties that society demands. In support of this theory Aquinas approves of as many social functions as reasonably possible.

The social life of the Aquinas student is not a smug one. He does not continually follow one clique, nor does he attend only the dances and parties given directly by the school. He supports the youth centers and dry night clubs and does not look with disdain upon adolescent entertainment. He patronizes dances held by other high schools, and he is a frequenter of church dances.

More than once a year parties at which faculty members are present are held at the school. Concerts are sponsored to further the cultural aspects of the organization and to permit a comingling of its members.

CHRISTIAN CULTURE SERIES

EIGHTH SEASON 1948-1949

This series of lecture-forums was founded to provide contact with leading minds of our time. To date, seventy-six outstanding thinkers, scholars, artists, professors, writers, statesmen have been presented.

From Asia, Europe, America, from Jews, Protestants, Catholics come its personnel. By reason of opportunity and talent they have made uncommon contributions to the treasury of Christian Culture. They are popular speakers. Yet authority determines selection rather than extent of fame.

Wholly nonprofiting, the direction and setting of the series are provided gratis by the Basilian Fathers who conduct Aquinas Institute. Its maintenance depends on your registration.

To see and hear men of study and reflection is a proven method of higher learning. Augustine had his inspiration at the lectures of St. Ambrose in Milan. Each event in this series is intended to be a rewarding intellectual experience.

Dear Father Hafley:
The Christian Culture Series has definitely established itself as a part of the cultural life of our city. For the past few years, we have listened to the outstanding intellectual figures of our day.

No community can rise any higher than the cultural values it appreciates. The acceptance of this project, inaugurated and maintained by the Aquinas Institute is a fine commentary on the cultural status of our city. We are very much pleased to know that you have again prepared a series of evenings for us, well worthy of the tradition already established by the Christian Culture Series. The effort has our most sincere blessing.
Your devoted Bishop

"The fortnightly treat your lectures offer is well worth the thirty mile drive."
"Everything a lecturer likes you have—splendid audience, dignified setting. Sincerely I say I have never enjoyed giving a lecture as much as on your series. I have heard other lecturers say the same."
"No student of the times (and all of us should be now) can afford to miss them. They are timely talks at once popular and profound."
"Our series to have attained such considerable success in the people of all creeds in Rochester is a great achievement."

Mothers' Club and Faculty Jointly Sponsor Parent-Teacher Evening

After the first quarter examinations the faculty and Mothers' Club arrange annually an evening in which the parents of Aquinas students can meet the faculty and discuss with them the scholastic progress that their son is making. The result of these meetings is always exceedingly beneficial to both the students and teachers. It is the hope of the faculty and Mothers' Club that the annual meeting will increase in attendance.

Diversity of Clubs' Achievements Made Evident By Year's Progress

During the year each club has labored feverishly to accomplish at least one project of recognizable magnitude. The Greek Club was able to show its members many facets of Hellenic culture and how the remnants of Grecian life and thought permeate our own culture. The German Club was able to give opportunities for aural comprehension by their bilingual parties and discussions. RAYMOND J. HASENAUER

Director of Music

For the last seventeen years Aquinas has been indeed fortunate having a music director who has devoted almost two decades to inculcate in Aquinas students more than a rudimentary appreciation of music. Indeed, Mr. Hasenauer has worked assiduously to elicit the latent musical talents of the students.

A graduate of the Eastman School of Music, Mr. Hasenauer studied percussion under the tutelage of the Street brothers, who are known throughout the country for their learned understanding of percussion music and for their excellent performances in the Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra. After his graduation from the Eastman School Mr. Hasenauer was a member of the Percussion Department of the Eastman School and excelled in the Rochester Philharmonic. Having spent four years with the Eastman School of Music, Mr. Hasenauer came to Aquinas in the capacity of Director of Music.

Music Department Poses Challenge for Director.

At Aquinas there are two glee clubs, the Junior Glee Club and the Senior Glee Club, composed of four sections and one section respectively. Training more than three hundred glee club members in addition to instructing other musical groups would quickly enervate the average music director, but to Mr. Hasenauer this is a challenge to which he responds admirably. The Liturgical Choir is another part of the musical participation of Aquinas students. Made up of seniors except for a sophomore accompanist Polecki, the Liturgical Choir sings at Masses and at other religious assemblies. In order to carry on the work of this group the members sacrificed more than half of their lunch period—for which they are to be commended.

His arrival this year was a shot in the arm to the music department and a great relief to our overworked Maestro. We hope Mr. Duquette will long be with us. BISHOP KEARNEY TALKS OVER PLANS FOR THE CONGRESS OF MARY WITH PREFECTS OF DIOCESAN SODALITIES AND GUEST SPEAKERS FOR THE SODALITY CONFERENCE

AQUINAS SODALITY HOST TO DIOCESAN HIGH SCHOOLS AT CONGRESS OF MARY

Although the Sodality is not the only medium of religious expression at Aquinas, it does present a few facets of the religious life of Aquinas on account of its having concerted efforts toward one realization: sanctification.

In the past the Sodality was an inadequately functioning organization. But this year definite action was taken to limit the membership and to have specific aims. Under the guidance of Father Flood this was brought about. Adhering to the Common Rules of 1910, the official rule book of the National Sodality of Our Lady, the '48-'49 Sodality adopted a new constitution, which provides for a Central Council, composed of the Sodality officers and committee heads. It is due to these changes in policy that the Sodality has been able to make what progress is creditable to them.

Father Flood and Officers direct Sodalists in active year

By the Sodalists of '48-'49 many new policies were adopted and vigorously adhered to. In the beginning of the school year Father Flood and Art Kirn decided to limit the membership of the Sodality to accomplish the aims they had in mind. With the select members they enlisted, a total of some seventy students, the Sodality was able to function efficiently and prudently. The aims that they were able to accomplish were the inculcation of a more profound appreciation of the virtues, a more dynamic partaking of the divine sacraments and, in toto, a greater cognizance and love of Catholicism.

A message from the Faculty Advisor, Father Flood, is read at a meeting by Art Kirn.

Father Looby Directs Progress Of Mission Crusade

This year Father Looby has assumed the duties of the Director of the Mission Crusade from his predecessor, Father Haffey. The record of the Aquinas Missions over the past twenty years has been one of national recognition. Last year over $11,000 was raised by contributions, raffles and donations from sources outside the school. This year Father Looby set out to top the total reached last year. If the students could "catch" but a small part of Father's zeal there would be no difficulty in reaching the quota. The aid received by both foreign and home missions from Aquinas goes toward the spread of the Word of Christ. This alone suffices for the effort that Father Looby and the members of the Aquinas Mission Unit put into mission work.

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF RICHARD WHALEN EXPLAINS FLAWS OF AN OLD ISSUE OF THE MAROON & WHITE TO EDITORS AND WRITERS

M & W Reaches Zenith of Literary Excellence Under Editorship of Richard Whalen

Ever since Richard Whalen was appointed Editor-in-Chief of the Maroon and White, he has arduously worked toward perfecting the literary standards of his publication. And because of his ingenuity and perseverance his aims have been realized more than he ever expected them to be. Six-page editions were rather frequent, and the expense incurred by them was astutely cancelled by the financial policy of the '48-'49 Maroon and White. The coordination that has existed in the M & W Staff this year has been remarkable and greatly responsible for the success the school's newspaper has had.

William Shafer, Eugene Langie, James Donovan and Robert English; News, Literary, Sports and Features Editors respectively, have given their recreation to the M & W so that the paper would meet the high requisites they had established for it in the beginning of the year.

To the senior editors and writers of the M & W and to Father Regan, advisor of the M & W we of the Arete acknowledge with deep gratitude the assistance given to us during our Arete Magazine Drive.

For the March edition of the M & W it is a tradition at Aquinas that a Junior Editor in-Chief is appointed to guide the publishing of an edition. This tradition is maintained because the practical experience gained and the advice of the Senior Editor help familiarize the Junior Editor-in-Chief with the procedures and policies of the publication. Kreag Donovan was the Junior Editor this year.

ARETE

THE ENTIRE ARETE STAFF ASSEMBLES TO DETERMINE THE POLICY OF THE 1949 EDITION

A BOOK THAT COST $22,288.75

From October 10th to October 20th the Arete sponsored a school-wide campaign to raise for this, the '49 edition. In spite of the advertisements used to defray the expenses of yearbook publications of past years, the yearbook had never been really self-sufficient. To overcome this problem this year the students of Aquinas sold well over $22,000.00 worth of magazine subscriptions by the use of a plan originated and sponsored by the Curtis Circulations Company. By the utilization of this plan and the collaboration of a few patrons the Arete has managed to release itself from financial dependence upon the school.

The Magazine Campaign was a whirl-wind affair; few will forget the high-pressure salesmanship of the "shmoos" and the thousand dollars in prizes; the $1397.31 sold by Homeroom 306; the skits of Gene Eckert and the Assembly Committee; the hours of work backstage by Pete Helfrich; the commercials and theme songs of Tom Attridge and his boys; the electronic noises of "Professor" Dick Smith; the enormous two-story thermometer and the hours of counting money and rolling quarters, nickels and dimes by the Business Staff.

Surely, the editors of the '49 Arete need not try to express their appreciation to those who went out and worked to sell for the campaign, and to those who spent many long hours, contributing time and energy that it might be a success. The fact that Aquinas has set a new record for sales for such a campaign in the entire nation indicates the work and zeal that was expended.

Father Malone, John Sours, John Schonleber, Bob Hull, and John Forward discuss the inter-dependence between the Business and Literary Staffs.

CLOSELY WATCHED FOR THE DAILY RESULTS THIS GIGANTIC THERMOMETER INFORMED THE STUDENTS OF THE MAGAZINE DRIVE'S PROGRESS

GOOD SHMOOS

To sponsor such a campaign as the Arete Magazine Drive an enormous amount of preparation in the form of plans and organizations, advertising and special committees is required. After the campaign has been successfully launched, there begins ten days of hectic campaigning. Of those who gave their time and talents unstintingly to make the Drive the success that it was, who can forget the hours spent preparing the Assemblies, struggling for ideas and gags that would inspire the students to sell more and more, the daily count and check of the returns, the anxiety as the campaign started, the amazement as the returns soared over the 20,000-dollar-mark, the joy and the night's sleep when the whole thing ended? And who can forget the SHMOOS?

The Advertising Committee maps plans for the announcement of the drive with members of the Art Staff

As a reward for their efforts, members of the Arete Staff are guests of the Curtis Circulation Company at a banquet held in their honor at the conclusion of the Magazine Drive

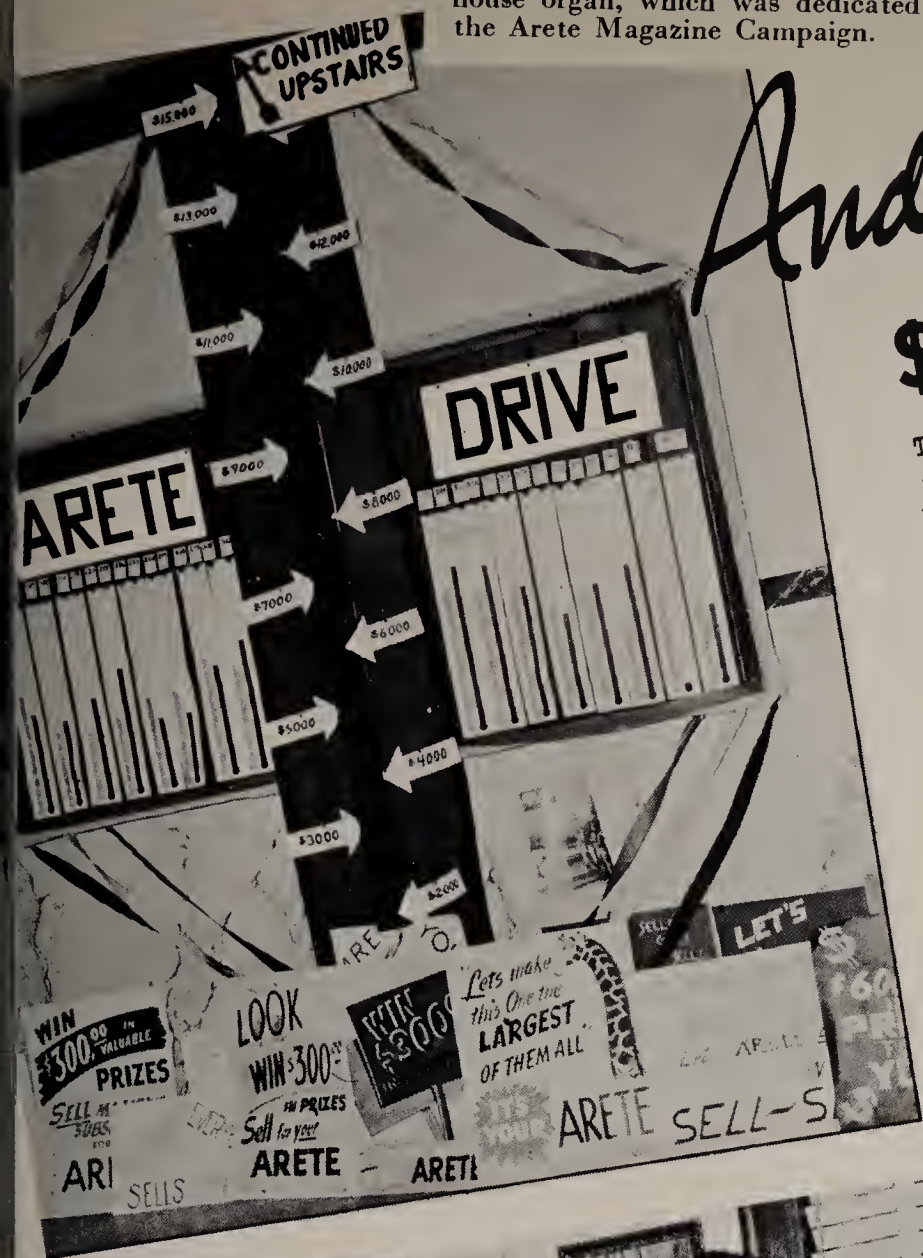

Editors John Sours and John Schonleber live from "deadline to deadline."

THE "SHMOOS"

The SHMOOS were the high-pressure sales idea that put the Campaign over. The shmoos were indicative of the $1000.00 worth of prizes used to sponsor the campaign. To the Arete '49 the Shmoos represented the end of its financial worries.

The fact that the campaign was a success financially was something important, but out of the campaign there came a much higher good. It provided a real-life situation for the students, especially for those who shouldered the terrific responsibility of working out the organization, keeping the books for a $23,000.00 turnover, and supplying the advertisement and the advertising schemes that bore so much fruit. It provided the common goal that knit each homeroom together into a working whole. It provided an added lift to the school spirit and fostered the spirit of enterprise in the student body as they learned the art of salesmanship at first hand. We feel sure that the best effects of the campaign are to be found in the development of the personalities of those students who went all-out for the common good of their Alma Mater.

This is a page from the "Go-Getter," the Curtis Circulation Company's house organ, which was dedicated to the Arete Magazine Campaign.

And how they sold 'em - $23,000 IN 2 WEEKS!

The students of Aquinas Institute, Rochester, N. Y. are the super salesmen who rang up this whopping total of subscriptions -- the largest ever sold by one school in one Curtis launching! These students assured their school year book, "Arete", of financial success in those few days of hard work!

Aquinas is used to doing things in a big way and they certainly lived up to reputation on this job. Those students just couldn't be held back.

The able leadership and enthusiasm of Rev. John A. Malone, C.S.B., faculty coordinator for this launching, was reflected in the whole student body. The Aquinas football team is the talk of the Rochester area. With the spirit shown in this launching, we can see they're just in the habit of coming out on top -- whether it's football or subscriptions.

Dear Father Malone

With the yearbook within one day of completion we, the editors of the '49 Arete, wish to express our gratitude for the succor and inspiration that you so gratuitously contributed to this publication as faculty advisor.

Your activities as guidance director, English teacher, homeroom moderator and psychologist are fatiguing enough, but fully realizing the supplementary toils you were assuming, you did not in the least hesitate to accept the tiring responsibility of our financial And how well you fulfilled them! The success of our financial plan is greatly attributable to you, and the coordination of the Business and Literary Staffs is to your credit. Our ideas were organized under your supervision so that coherency would be present.

But more important by the "seminars in our room on the fourth floor" you have helped us to start to formulate our philosophy of life. Yes, you have counseled us in many more fields than yearbook production, and for your sagacious advice and lasting inspiration we shall never be able to thank you sufficiently.

AQUINAS ATHLETES SOAR TO NATIONAL PROMINENCE

In any well developed organization there are a few definite steps which lead to a final end which is the high point in the organization. The sports program at Aquinas has these necessary steps and their effectiveness is fully recognized by anyone who has ever been in contact with them. At times the student body and friends of Aquinas forget that these important things do exist and that they are a vital part of the football picture presented by the varsity each year.

To qualify for the varsity there are four steps which a boy must go through before he is experienced and sufficiently competent to take the field with the seasoned varsity. The four grades of advancement, considered chronologically, are grammar school football, freshman football, reserve football and varsity football.

PAROCHIAL ELEVENS TEACH FUTURE VARSITY FUNDAMENTALS OF GAME

Tom Gervais and Ed Dakin, Arete representatives, scrutinize a practice of the Nazareth Hall Team.

The prospective football player is initiated to the sport of football in grammar school where he is brought to the realization that there is a great deal more to football than a mere throwing of a pigskin. Nazareth Hall is indicative of this and because of the proximity of this grammar school to Aquinas we are using it as an exemplification. The eighth graders of Nazareth Hall organize each year an eleven that practices two to three times a week. In these practice sessions the neophytes devise a few simple plays which they hope will have enough deception to outwit the opposing team the following week. With a few exceptions this is the first time that any of these boys have met in organized practice. This is our reason for having selected the grammar school as the very first step of training.

Frosh Football Team Displays Interesting Potentialities To Varsity

Development of skill in blocking and tackling is brought about in the second period when a boy joins the freshman squad. Under the capable direction of Mr. Moynihan the freshman players are taught a few more fundamentals. When they leave the Freshman School, they have a firm grasp of a good number of the more advanced principles which will enable them to compete at least in reserve football at the main school.

"B" Team Feeds Stars To Varsity

The "B" Team is the third step that the athlete pauses on before the big step up to the varsity. The job before the coaches is to turn out the future stars that will shine on the schools main team. The long hours of practice that are spent by the members of the "B" Team are spent in preparation for future service on the varsity. It is therefore a most important part of the athletic program at Aquinas.

THE AQUINAS FOOTBALL STORY

The Aquinas football season of 1948 furnished Rochester with the most spectacular brand of football that Rochester sports fans could ever hope to see. It produced a season of seven victories and one tie.

Head Coach of Aquinas, Harry Wright, first exhibited his team on a bright clear Sunday afternoon. This afternoon had to be bright and clear to enable the fans to see his fast backs spurt up and down the field all afternoon as they vanquished Xavier High of New York City by the score of 47-0. Charley Hilbert's 50 and 20' yard dashes for touchdowns were the game's highlights.

The second game for the Irish was an even more decisive victory than the 29-6 score indicated. Weber High of Chicago was able to amass only 42 yards as against the tremendous total accumulated by the Aquinas backs. Jimmy Ging and associates had an excellent day running up 307 yards from scrimmage. Vince DeGasperi jumped into the scoring column by crashing through the Weber line to pull down Dick Oscar in his end zone for a two point safety.

Aquinas qualified for any possible "Mud Bowl" game with their brilliant playing against Bishop Byrne High School from Port Arthur, Texas. The Little Irish, led by Chuckin'

Charley Maloy, playing the best game of his career, were at their very best as they stupefied the Texans, 38-6. Quarterback Maloy tossed three touchdown passes, completed seven out of eight and personally crossed the goal line on a quarterback sneak.

The following week against Aquinas's traditional rival, Catholic Central of Detroit, led by Jimmy Ging's magnificent performance, the Aquinas boys again came out the victors by 33-0. Fullback Ging scored three touchdowns with Della Vella and Barbera having a field day.

Although Aquinas completely outplayed their next opponent, Marianapolis, Connecticut prep school co-champions, it was the Golden Knights who supplied the most thrilling game of the entire season. Marianapolis was an experienced, well-poised team who refused to allow a 14-point deficit to deter them in their efforts to give Aquinas their first defeat. With the score 14-12 the Connecticut team attempted a fake field goal which was detected by Aquinas just as the game ended 14-12. End Ray Rigney was exceptionally good in this game.

The Aquinas team repulsed the second evasion from Texas by turning back St. Thomas High of Houston, 22-6.

The first string lines up on the offensive. Frank Trubitts (RE), Frank Legan (RT), Vince DiGasperi (RG), Art Nowock (C), Tom Seaman (LG), Harpo Holohan (LT), Frank Noce substituting for Ray Rigney (LE), Roddy Powers substituting for Johnny Della Villo (RH), Jimmy Ging (FB), Charley Moioy (QB), and Joe Barbero (LH)

Plunging Al Catalano and shifty Charley Hilbert had to turn in their best performances to offset the splendid work of Tom Anderson, ambidextrous quarterback.

The second last opposition of the year was Mt. Carmel High from Chicago. This game also ended up on the right side of the win-lose ledger for Aquinas. The Aquinas line operated to perfection against the visitors, and the 33-13 score could have been larger if Coach Wright had so desired.

The final game of the season was the meeting of Aquinas with St. Benedict's Prep of New Jersey Thanksgiving. This game was without a doubt one of the hardest fought of the year. In an early part of the game Aquinas scored for 7 points and was forced to fight desperately to hold their lead. But in the concluding minutes of the game St. Benedict tallied 7 points to tie the game. Roddy Powers's gains will never be forgotten by the Rochester football fans.

In summation it comes out like this: an exceptional coaching staff in addition to some fine boys with a burning desire to play football—the result had to be the best team ever to represent Aquinas.

The second string lines up on the offensive.

But regardless of the length of the season it cannot be considered a fiasco. Aquinas is credited with having defeated Assumption High of Windsor, Canada. Assumption is known throughout Canada for its basketball team.

Father Nolan, Coach of the '48-'49 team, did not have any difficulty securing good material for his team. Tommy Naylor would make any coach happy. And Ray Rigney, Hank Cwalina, Buzzy Beaver, Ray Hausenauer, Jay Hally, Jack Foley and Mike Finigan would more than interest any coach.

Coach Joe McGucken has led his charges through a season that has been marked by meets with teams of the highest caliber. Teams from out of town, as well as the University of Rochester, swam against Aquinas, in the most part vanquishing them by close scores.

Aquinas Cooper Marines Reach State Finals

For the '48 baseball season the talent at Aquinas was concentrated in one team, the Cooper Marines. This team is sponsored by the American Legion and has the privilege of playing games within the league. Under the coaching of Rev. C. O. Bergeron, C. S. B. the '48 Cooper Marines defeated all contenders for the playoffs of the state championship, vied for at Cooperstown, New York. They scored 118 runs against 33 for their regular season's opponents. In the five playoff games for the state championship the Cooper Marines amassed 36 runs in contrast to 19 scored against them. They, however, lost the championship to Yonkers 6-1.

Thus, the Cooper Marines scored a season's total of 144 runs against 52 tallied against them. For sixteen games their average for runs-batted-in was nine. All during the season Fr. Bergeron's charges received statewide publicity. Examples of headlines that appeared in newspapers throughout the state of New York are: "Coopers Oust Auburn Legion, 10-5," "Late Rally Nets Coopers 7-6 Win Against Buffalo So. Side," "Coopers Win 15th in Row—Clip Elmira Benthleys, 6-1," "Marines Win Legion Playoff Against Geneva, 9-1, and "Yonkers Beats Cooper Marines, 6-1."

PROPHECY FOR THE CLASS OF 1949

Time: 8:00 P.M., November 10, 1968

Characters: E. "Claghorn" Langie, urbane Senator from New York and Bernie Costich, horse-room proprietor and man of infamy.

Occasion: Two former schoolmates accidentally met in the cocktail lounge of the Mayflower Hotel in Washington, D. C.

"Harumph . . . Say Tony, remember our days back at Aquinas? Little did I realize that the No. 7 man in our class would someday be my favorite bartender. Of course, you always were a good mixer."

So spoke the senior Senator from New York, E. "Claghorn" Langie to Tony Saturno, barkeep at the popular Mayflower Hotel. His private secretary and constant companion, Charles "Pencil-box" Becker, sat spinning furiously on the next stool while sipping a glass of strong milk. As the golden drops of wisdom fell fast from the Senator's ever moving lips, "Professor" Smith, holder of a Ph. D. in Acoustics from Nazareth Hall, feverishly recharged the Senator's hearing aid. It was obvious that the Senator had not forgotten his old friends from the school that made the Basilian Fathers famous. Slowly a not unfamiliar figure abandons his post at the pinball machine and sullenly saunters towards the incredulous statesman. Suddenly the glint of recognition marks his eye.

"Why, Bernie Costich, you old son-of-a-gun; how's the horseroom coming?"

"Pretty good, Senator, but I've been having a little trouble with those characters. Those two sure give a guy a tough time."

"Who did you say, snake-eyes?"

"You remember, Don Rider and James Fritz. They're the "pets" of the force! But don't think I ain't got pals in the department. Hairy Fitzpatrick and Mugs Genier keep me posted, and my new partner, Leery Ray Leary, ain't a bad lookout either."

"Really, Snake Eyes, I'd much rather, harrumph, hear about some of our Alma Mater's more respectable graduates."

"Well, there ain't many, Claghorn, but I'll tell you about them that I know. Dan Brent ain't doing bad. He just wrote a first grade arithmetic book with what d'you call it? logarithms in it. But don't think they're the only literate graduates.

"Homer" Bamann's done all right by himself, too. You should hear some of his gems. But that's not all; we got men in industry, too. There's Joe Abbate; he's the biggest manufacturer of bowling ball finger-holes in Rochester. Mike Celso's manufacturing refrigerators with windows, so people can tell if the little light goes out when you close the door."

"What about—what was his name—Tom Attridge, that it?"

"Oh, he's not working. He's vice-president of the Shafer Fur Company and remember Al Catalano? He used to be president of the Cocaine Sleeping Pill Co., but he's a tester now."

"Tester? For what?"

"Beauty-rest Mattress Co. And Russ Tripoli is Editor of "Junior Prom." "Scoop" Whalen is editor of the fashion department for the Rochester Times-Union, and remember Bill Shafer? He cleans the type. The two guys who're models have made a mint. Bob Buhite's a clothes dummy at "Three Sisters" and Alan Bock is a model for "Seventeen." But talk about money, why, Tom Whalen is president of the Douglas Corporation. He always did like pottery. Bob English is the copy boy at the Times-Union."

"Well, well in sooth 'tis my noble friend!"

"Ah, yes, Eugene, how are you!" the Senator replied.

"Holy Smokes, not Gene Eckert!" exclaimed Snake-eyes.

"Orson Eckert," my good man; and who might you be?"

"Snake-eyes Costich—you sure have a lousy memory, Gene, er . . . Orson."

"Ahem, getting down to earth," interspersed the senator, "I hear Art Behringer is doing quite well as an undertaker."

"Yeah," and Jimmy Donovan and Babbling Dick Burke have really thrown their hearts into grave-digging."

"And what of the athletic world?"

"Oh, we got plenty of them. Ray Rigney is working for his P.A.D. at Harvard and playing football on the side. Tommy "Fowl" Naylor and Hank Cwalina are with the Royals. They're going to town under their new coach Bob Ritz.

"Of course you knew that Charlie Maloy is still playing football at Aquinas."

"Such folly!" broke in the ever dignified Eckert, "Let me tell you of the great men of our class, The Men of Science." Dick Schneider has invented a new type of elevator shoes. Longjohn Murphy put up the money. Vince Santucci just came up with a portable home-type meatgrinder that can be used for meat or spinach. Dick Krause, Jimmy Hilbert and Joe Wegman are chief lab assistants at Kodak. Joe always did love chemistry."

"Never forget, my worthy friends, we also have numerous men in my profession. Hmmm. Ronald LeFrois, for example, has been one of the top men in the Progressive Party since Wallace died. Al Wolfert married Norman Thomas's daughter and is running for President on the Socialist ticket this year. Hear about Bob Hull? Poor Bob is buried in the Vice-Presidency for a term with Fr. Slattery acting as advisor on how to get out of the grave."

"Youse no doubt heard about big John Sours."

"No, no, what happened to John? He was always the scholar of the class."

"The cops caught up with him. He had been stealing bodies from the Bellevue Morgue for over twelve years and taking them back to his lab high on a hill overlooking his alma mater, Yale.

"You don't say. A most unusual ending for John."

"Last summer I hopped a freight for Rochester and by chance met an old friend, Ed Dakin. He was touring the country in his private railroad car. It seems he cleaned up on a big deal back home, by selling insurance to the Basilian Fathers on all their vast holdings in real estate."

"I was recently visited by our class president, Tom Green. He has been visiting the various alumni groups in an attempt to raise funds to complete the long promised front walk in front of the school."

"Tom always was a man to finance some idea. On my way through New York I met Tommy Hickey. He has been working as a model for Esquire."

"Larry Wright, after receiving a degree in marine engineering, has just succeeded "Tugboat Annie" as head captain on the Lower Hudson River."

"Really, quite a chap, quite a chap. No doubt you have heard that through my drag I have placed our old friend, Gary Smith, on the New York State Boxing Commission for a considerable share in the Doyle Detective Agency of course."

"Well, Senator, I guess de class didn't make out too bad after all."

"No, no, a few of us have reached the heights of success that we set out to attain. And you, Snake-eyes, you really didn't do so bad yourself. I'll be seeing you again some time, in the near future. I hope you can make the alumni meeting next June."

THE LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT OF THE SENIOR CLASS OF 1949

We, the class of '49, while still of sound mind, take this opportunity to record our last will and testament. Having taken all precautions, we defy anyone to sue us for slander for what is written below.

To Dan Brent, a new flag and some oil for the flagpole.

To Charlie Becker, a cape like Father Regan's.

To Joe Abbate, an elliptical bowling ball.

To Gene Langie, a string to go around his finger and a chance to be Maurice Evan's understudy.

To John Schwan, a snowplow on the front of his car to brush aside the pedestrians.

To Ray Rigney, raised doorways in all rooms.

To Charley Maloy, a new rubber band for his slingshot.

To John Tkaczyk, a few vowels for his name.

To Gus White, a new megaphone and a chance to pose for Johnson's Baby Oil.

To Dick Whalen, a typewriter, a pot of glue, and a new lock for the Maroon and White room.

To Larry Uchie, a sombrero and two weeks' siesta in Mexico.

To Jim Van Rosendael, a chance to appear on a morning television show and sing "Powder Your Face With Sunshine."

To Dick Burke, a copy of "1000 Jokes and How To Tell Them."

To Don and Tom Brindisi, two pair of lumber-jack's boots.

To Bob Benjamin, one tube of blackface.

To John Forward, a vest bow tie, a razor and a comb to train his unruly hair.

To Father Spratt, a trapeze in the gym.

To Farther Wurzer, a toga and chariot to accompany "an interlinear translation of the Anabasis."

To Mr. Hasenauer, a black tie and a day of perfect attendance at Senior Glee Club.

To Mr. Braden, a padded yardstick and a ten gallon hat.

To John Sours, one gallon of midnight oil, a couch and a lifetime subscription to the Psychiatry Journal.

To Father Nolan, a P.A. system and an air conditioning unit for the lab.

To the inkwell holes in the desks, bangboards to facilitate the playing of inkwell basketball.

To the statue of St. Thomas in the main hall, an armrest and a folding chair.

To Father Kehoe, a garden hose (for lawns only).

To Father Looby, two tickets to the 1952 Republican National Convention.

To "Oscar," a can of varnish and a spare hook in Mr. Melody's Health Class.

To Father Regan, a set of the complete works of Shakespeare, and a chance to meet Laurence Olivier.

To Joe Roberts, a chance to be Tom Dewey.

To Father O'Meara, a copy of "How to Win an Argument."

To Father Slattery, a book on statistics and a relic of Teddy Roosevelt's Big Stick.

To Gary Smith, the title of Mr. America.

To Bernie Wahl, the rank of Admiral on the U.S.S. Missouri.

To Bob Bamann, a chance to write for the Rochester Poetry Society.

To Carl Schultze, a chance to get his picture in the Arete with the Ski Team.

To Jack Schonleber, a job stirring fudge at Fanny Farmer's, and three dollars to drop the "er" off the end of his name.

To Bill Dempsey, a lock of Frank Leahy's hair.

To Joe Pagano, just one more argument with Father Slattery.

To Jack Wolf, a lifetime subscription to "Tarzan Comics."

To Tom Green, 300 pounds of cement, "with his feet in it," for the front walk.

To Father Malone, a copy of Dale Carnegie's "How to Win Friends and Influence People."

To Bill Reeves, a twelve passenger limousine so that he can deliver his friends to their homes after school without making two trips.

To the niches on the outside of the school, statues of all the Sodalists.

To the gym floor, a bag of nails.

To Father Donovan, a certificate for one free Thomas Hair Restoring Treatment.

To Mr. Melody, a new sphygmomanometer for measuring systolic and diastolic pressure and also an encephagraphical diagnosis and prognosis of his evolutionary melancholia.

To Red Wing Stadium, a pair of new goal posts.

To Father Eckert, a chance to operate on a profit basis.

To Joe Smith, an opportunity to meet Jack Benny.

To Guy Merkel, a perpetual student pass.

To Frank Noce, a football with handles.

To Tom O'Rourke, a carton of smelling salts for the opposition.

To Father Duggan a cordless blind for his office.

To Bob Pierce, a season pass to the Nurse's Office.

To Dave Hill, a job driving the Blossom Road bus.

To Tom Burkholder, a map of Ohio and a song.

To Al "Tank" Catalano, a new set of caterpillar treads.

To Hank Cwalina, an undersized basketball.

To Jim Donovan, a cleat from Jack Landry's shoe.

To Mike Duffy, a toothless comb.

To Gene Eckert, an audience and no script.

To Bob English, two free tickets to the Stardust Room.

To Ange Faraci, six home style sandwiches, one quart of milk, three apples, etc.

To Bob Feol, a crank and a free tow job for the new Jeepster.

To Don Finewood, a baby brownie.

To Harry Fitzpatrick, a shelter on the corner of Main and St. Paul.

To Dick Flaherty, an inspiration for a History Club assembly.

To Ed Dakin, an opportunity to sell Aquinas life insurance.

To Art Kirn, a new rendition of "Frankie and Johnnie" every day, a fresh supply of needles, and an auditorium full of members of the Mercy High Chapter of the Art Kirn Fan Club.

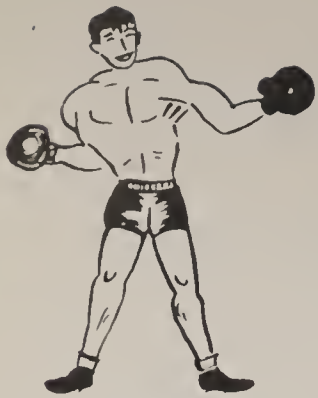

To Father O'Leary, a copy of "Grin and Bear It."

To Bob Hull, "D."

To Bill Shafer, a pair of Adler Elevator Shoes, and a big "scoop" for the news page.

To Jim McAvoy, a chance to type copy for the Arete of 1950.

On these pages that follow are pictured our advertisers. For indeed the homerooms are the patrons, advertisers, promoters, sponsors and "angels" of the 1949 Arete. By dint of the tireless efforts of the homeroom units during our Magazine Drive to finance this publication, the 1949 yearbook was made possible. To the homeroom moderators, to the mission leaders and coordinators, and to each homeroom, especially to the freshman, sophomore and junior homerooms, the Arete extends its deep gratitude. The 1949 Arete is a total-school publication.
